Open Question 1

There was not much actual teaching in this course. It was more along the lines of "Jump in and try something. I'll tell you where you need improvement." Although having work critiqued was very helpful, it would have been nice to have more guidance and instruction going into the work. There was no outline or schedule for the course, and projects were assigned in class the week before they were due. If someone missed a class, they would not know what was expected of them because nothing is included on Moodle or in the syllabus. The biggest problem with the course is the room left for misinterpretation of what the course is meant to teach. This is an FTA class labeled "Basic Design," which I interpreted as a class that would teach Production Design, that is, how to use art to supplement storytelling. In reality, the class is an art class that teaches the elements of art (such as form and composition) without linking it to storytelling whatsoever. If I had known this, I would not have taken this class.

I loved this class a lot. I think the only note I have is we took a long time critiquing our art assignments and usually didn't finish a lot. So maybe having a certain amount of time to talk about each persons piece may help.

Feedback was very useful, and doing projects centered around single elements of art helped stimulate creativity within boundaries.

You are very good at getting the students involved. I wish I could have finished the class in person.

This class was very enjoyable and was a way for me to learn hands on. Diane is awesome and makes me want to be in class. I never feel like I'm going to go into class and be bored or feel like I won't learn. Diane is able to explain new ideas I don't understand in a way that is interesting and helps me learn something new. Diane has been one of my favorite instructors up to this point in my education.

I absolutely adore Diane and Kevin as instructors. Everything was pleasantly explained and very educational. It never felt like class, felt like cool people just hanging out around the theater learning. I look forward to the next session with them. My only issue this semester had nothing to do with them or their teaching habits, but our TA was very dissatisfying. This TA never introduced herself, only began barking demands in a condescending voice. I later learned she goes by "Missy". She made it very unpleasant to be in class. I have no problem with taking direction however I am an adult and this TA treated me like a child. You give respect to get it and she had 0 respect for us. I would prefer not to work with her again but other than her, I LOVE THIS CLASS!

Open Question 1

I wouldve liked to have spent some more time covering operations of the light board and how to set up a lighting system

1. It would have been better to work in groups if there was more focus on ensuring every student understood how to operate lights and the board. There were times where I had to take the load of the work because some students never even attempted to learn the board and it made it difficult to communicate and work effectively. Personally, I also felt a little "Naked" in my knowledge of telling the difference between brands and models of light and what kind of light they throw.
2. The assignments were a little too abstract at times, because there was so much freedom there was no consistency in what we were expected to do.

Open Question 2

The course def helped my ability to identify lighting principles and have been more aware of lighting in shows ive seen

The class was very dynamic and hands on. The lighting projects force you to be physically involved, intellectually involved, and creatively involved. It is so refreshing to be educated through just working and experimenting and not being told how it is. Diane really is passionate about the subject which made it more fun to listen and ask her questions.

very knowledgeable in her field of light design and was able to teach that to us

Diane is a very talented lighting designer. I came into the course believing I knew how to light a show, but Diane really opened my eyes to how much fun and complex lighting can be. This course challenged me artistically and mentally, and I have learned so much from it.
